NAITA is pleased to welcome Major General (Ret.) Bruce K. Scott, President of ITT Defense International, to Huntsville to discuss the Opportunities & Challenges of Foreign Military Sales for the 26th Annual NAITA World Trade Day Luncheon. General Scott is also Vice President and Director of International Marketing at ITT Defense. In this position, he is responsible for planning and directing ITT Defense's international marketing activities. Mr. Scott came to ITT from the U.S. Army after his retirement on October 1, 2002 at the rank of Major General. In 1999, he became Commanding General, United States Army Security Assistance Command (USASAC) with responsibility for all Army foreign military sales, supporting 141 countries and international organizations, with more than 4,300 FMS cases annually.

World Trade Day recognizes the significance of international trade in the growth and economic well being of our region. NAITA and the Madison County Commission will co-sponsor the luncheon, which focuses on the importance of international trade to the world economy – and what it means in our local communities. Exports and foreign investment equal jobs, economic prosperity, and business opportunities for North Alabama. During the luncheon, the 2009 NAITA Global Trade Award will be presented to a regional entity for its contributions to international trade.

As part of the 2009 Defense Trade Series, co-sponsored by the Alabama International Trade Center, a NAITA Foreign Military Sales Briefing will be held following the luncheon. The briefing will highlight the U.S. Army Aviation and Missile Command (AMCOM)'s involvement in Security Assistance through Foreign Military Sales. This briefing to the business community will provide AMCOM's Security Assistance role/function through Foreign Military Sales as it supports U.S. National Security and our allies.

Sponsorship opportunities are available. Please contact NAITA at 256.532.3505 or naita@naita.org for further details.
